The bludgeoning of chance isclean rich with possibilities.

Chance has paid a major role istumybling from an uncertain Year 12 student to be here tonight speakingun of one of the greats of the Australian legal profession.

At the end of Year 12, I did well ethousumprise myself and everyone else, but I had no idea what to do withurney Buck then, when standards were lower than they are now, I was acdeptedrinor five different courses at both Monash University and Melbouirnersity. In my naivety, I thought that, if tote Arestralia knew the things that I had learned, the Government's refugee woolid not long survive. I started accepting invitations to speak about nearingers. Only those here tonight who are practising lawyers will understand difficult decision that is. For members of the profession generally embers of the Braparticular, speaking publicly is not quite the drope I thias deeply conscious of this as, one by one, professional colleaguage ple I had thought were friends turned their backs on me. On this probate ever, chance played a surprising role. Kate and I were at a vergral associal function one night when the wife of a very senior and highly example of the said, somewhat archly, Doiry buit tappropriate that a member of the Bar should speak publicly about materials as:

With more wit than preparation I replied Do you thin pritiparity to know about these matters and remain silent?

The conversation ended thand I gather she has no retort, because she hasn t spoken to me since it resolved my anyiabout speaking publicly about these matters.

As time went on, our mistreatnasytum seekers got worse and worse. There was Amin s case. Amin and this year old daughter were in detention at Baxter. Baxter was a high-diacter built prison designed and purpose-built by the Howard Government fioning tafugees. Amin and his daughter were in their cell in Baxter one day fiwer guards enette the room and ordered Amin to strip. They thought baccigarette lighter. In Muslim culture, it is deeply shameful for a breanakted in from to the people, but in any event his eight year old daughter threaroom so he refused to take his clothes off.

The guards roughed him up a binardduffed him and took him to the management unit. The managemeat Baixter was a series of 13 solitary confinement cells. Each cell measuppeokimately 2% metres square; the walls and floor are bornecizete. There are no fuingiss in the cells except for a mattress on the floor. Then boofulpase cell has no company for 23%. hours out of every 24 but no pitilinacybecause each cell is videomonitored 24 hours a day and for that purpose the lights are left on 24 hours day. The occupant of each cell himightot read, nothing to write with, no television, no radio, no form of distraction of any sort. For Amin, the only break in his regime of solitarinement was a 30 minute visit from his daughter each day. One when he had been dintary confinement for a couple of weeks, his daughter did not brotherevisit. Amin complained, and was assured that shedwardtaken into Port Augusta shopping and would be there the next day. But the ynexatmebaand went, baissddaughter did not visit. The manager of the cantemployee of the Department of Immigration, then explained to himishdatughter was now back in Tehran and if he wished to see her assimoulhe abandon his claim for protection and return to Iran voluntarily. ButAfmist, thought the man was playing a practical joke but when he was perstuated was true he had what amounted to a complete nervous collapsæmblined in solitary confinement for another six or eight weeks.

When the case went to court, three Detparairgument was that the Judge had no power to tell them how the dytale at I people held in Immigration Detention. The Judge disagreed Deplace the ment appealed, apparently wanting to persuade three judges of the Finall Code to say that the Department was at liberty to treat people in a limitation in any way it wanted. The appeal was dismissed.

By 2008 the boats had virtually stopined annihily 2008, the first Rudd Government introduced a numbefooths to the Migration Act which satisfied about 90% of the coorceetisgee advocates. A while later however chance played another wildToardAbbott becateder of the Opposition by one vote. As soonbæscare leader of the Opposition he began complaining publicly and loadody boat people. Mr Rudd responded by mounting a ferocious attack on peoplersmutggeems that in the heat of the moment he had forgotten thratahisero Dietrich Bonnhoeffer had been a people smuggler, albeit a betreometenHe had forgotten, it seems, that Oskar Schindler was a people smutgglethat Gustav Schroeder, the Captain of the St Louis, were both people smugglers.

When Julia Gillard became Australiasts fremale Prime Minister, she ran a very ambivalent line about boat per expressingness concern for the circumstances which led there, tente said that she understood why Australians were concerned about per arriving in Australia. The asylum seeker debate went offerantack at about that time.

The low-point of the debate was the recimpaign that preceded the Federal election of September 2013. That election campaign, for the first time in Australia s political history, saw both paratiles try to outbid each other in their promises of cruelty to boat people.

Tony Abbott won the educated made good of his promise to mistreat boat people. We now have the harsheismalideagolicies in relation to boat people and arguably the harshest treationeent postople of any country which has signed the Refugees Convention.

In broad outline it goes like this.

When boat people arrive at Christmds they have typically spent eight or 10 days on a rickety boat. The typically come from landlocked countries and have typically nevernsptime on the ocean. Typically, they have had not enough to prically, they have had no opportunity to wash or to change their clostpically, they arrive distressed, frightened and wearing clothes caked in their own excrement.

They are not allowed to shower tham be their clothes before they are interviewed by a member of the Imministration. It is difficult to think of any decent justification for the tinb them to that humiliation.

When they arrive, any medical applialments have will be confiscated and not returned: spectacles, hearing bids, etath, prosthetic limbs, are all confiscated. If they have any mendication them, those medications are confiscated and not returned. Agateration on Christmas Island, one person has a fulltime job of sitting tioff bobin popping pills out of blister packs for later destruction.

If they have any medited umentation with them, it is confiscated and not returned. The result of all of things is exple with chronic health problems find themselves denied any effectiatement. The results can be very distressing. For example: a doctorovkted on Christmas Island told me of a woman who had been detaine to the or meeks and who was generally regarded as psychotic. Her behavio bights erratic for reasons that no-one understood. The consultation withouth was very difficult because, although the doctor and the patiesitting recross a table from each other, the interpreter joined them by telephonson seven eventually, the doctor worked out that the problem was whom that was inconting four ine. She could not leave her cabin withoutuaring down her leg. It was driving her mad. When the doctor workealt duhits the cause of the problem, she asked the Department to imovirule nence pads. The Department s initial response was we don't do the doctor insisted. The Department relented and provided four incontinence pads per day: not enough, so that t woman needs to queue for mothe bindrontinence pads made a profound difference to her mood and behaviour.

In February 2014 Reza Barratsi killed on Manus Islamuttially, Australia said that he had escaped from hibiendetentre and was killed outside the detention centre. Soon it becameatlener whas killed inside the detention centre. It took nearly five months become was charged with the murder of Reza Barati. Nobody has been brought to court.

Just a couple of weeks after Raza Bas killed, I received a sworn statement from an eyewitnesstatement included the following:

J is a local who worked for Stathweation Army. He was holding a large wooden stick. It was an about the and a half long it had two nails in the wood. That were sticking out

When Reza came up the stairs, Jatwanse top of the stairs waiting for him. J said fuck you motherfucker J then swung back behind his shoulder with the stick and tookwaintoget Reza, hitting him on top of the head.

J screamed again at Reza and inhitagain on the ald. Reza then fell on the floor

I could see a lot of blood coming out of his head, on his forehead, runn down his face. His blood is still alive at this stage.

About 10 or 15 guards from G4S cathre strairs. Two of them were Australians. The rest were PNGs.lockhow who they are. I can identify them by their face. strateged kicking Reza in his head and stomach with their boots.

Reza was on the ground trying nto dienself. He put his arms up to cover his head but they were still kicking.

There was one local I recognized hine picked up big rock he lifted the rock above his healthneed it down hard on top of Reza s

Australia s system of mandatoryiodethems been trenchantly criticized by Amnesty International aUNHCR. In late 2010ACHR delivered a report on conditions in the Regional Prooperation (RPC) on Manus Island, saying:

UNHCR was deeply troubled tembesthat the current policies, operational approaches and harschapbysiditions at the RPC do not comply with international standards...

It also reported on conditions in Nauru and said:

...Assessed as a whole, UNHCR ithefview that the transfer of asylum-seekers to what are currently harsh and unsatisfactory tempor facilities, within a closed detenttiongs and in the absence of a fully functional legal framewant adequately capacit system to assess refugee claims, do not currently heretquired protection standards...

Just as a person s character is judged by

One of the most distressing thingseapœeteth situation is that it is based on a series of lies. When politicalled boat peopillegals and queue jumpers they are not telling the Whath politicians say that they are concerned about people drowning int the politicians say that they are not telling the truth. Australia has recently duced temporary protection visas. Temporary protection visas not only offer only three years protection, they deny the prospect of family reuthant has one obvious practical consequence: families who wishint the job usband or father who is living in Australia on a temporary protection visas allowed to come to Australia by any orthodox means, so the only what the family can be reunited is by the women and children using these viac people smuggler. Temporary protection visas are a positive incentive for people to use people smugglers. Quite apart from that, there is so indebing about the idea that in order to prevent people from drowning in the ones who don t drown. That is precisteth is viacuation is that it is based on a series of lies and they are not to be people from drowning in the ones who don t drown. That is precisteth is viacuation is that it is based on a series of lies and they are not they a

Like most of you, I am aware bhatdDHorne was speaking ironically when he wrote of Australia as the bunktyry. But in most important ways, compared with the boat people whoearch toafety in Australia, we are indeed lucky. Over the past 15 94% sof boat people have been assessed, by us, as refugees genuinely fleeingrthe persecution. In Australia, most members of the community never have persecution; never have to fear for the late night knock on the doomaymenter for their human rights.

But it is all because of the play cof.chmagine for amount that you are a Hazara from Afghanistan. You hadey flur country dayou have come down the northwest corridor through through both of those countries because you a one month visa on arrival. While you are in Indonesia ayou to the UNHCR office in Jakarta and apply for refugee status. alteyand Hazara from Afghanistan, you will almost certainly be assessed agea. reflut when your one month visa expires, you have to hide because after found by the police, they will jail you. You cannot work because if you work you will be found and then you be jailed. You cannot do your children to school because if you do you will be found and then you will be jatted the UNHCR has assessed you as a refugee, you can wait patiently sinadhows until some country offers to resettle you. That may 220 or 30 years.

Now, for just one minute, imagine that you have been bludgeoned by chance into that position: you are that playing wait in the shadows for 20 or 30 years or will you take your coultraigle limands and get boat? I have never met an Australiano would not get on the boat. It s a very strange thing that we criticize, revile and phoise who do precisely what we would do if chance had bludgeoned us into their position.

We know how chance bladgeoned people who flee for safety. Chance never did them any favours: can t we?
