Deception: Usually the initial description of the study will be accurate. However, on occasion the researcher may find it necessary to mislead you as to the true purpose of the study. Such deception can occur in one of two ways. The researcher may simply omit important information, or the researcher may actually misrepresent the true nature of the study. These types of deception will only occur when there is no other way to obtain meaningful data given the rationale for the experiment. All elements of deception will have been approved by the applicable ethics committee. At the end of a study involving deception, the researcher is obliged to describe the deception and to explain why it was necessary.

Confidentiality: Only the researcher and the researcher's supervisor have access to information that specifically identifies you with the data you provided. Although data collected from you may be reported on an individual or group basis in a publication, you can assume anonymity and confidentiality.

Complaints: If you have any complaints, you can obtain a Research Participation Complaint Form from the Psychology Office (Mathews Level 15). Your comments will be forwarded to the course coordinator and will remain completely confidential. Alternatively, you may contact the course
